Special Topics in Language, Literacy and Culture:

LLC 750, Section 01 Electracy

Electracy examines the cultural, institutional, pedagogical, and ideological implications inherent in the transition from a culture of print literacy to a culture saturated with electronic media. Electracy describes the kind of “literacy” (or skill and facility) necessary to exploit the full communicative potential of new electronic media such as multimedia, hypermedia, social software, and virtual worlds.

LLC 750, Section 02 Identity as Cultural Practices

Identity is defined, discussed and studied across most of the disciplines and interdisciplinary fields involved in LLC. Scholars understand that identity is not fixed or determined by demographics, life conditions, or cultural inheritances and that humans create culture and community everywhere, which become part of their social and cultural identities. From theoretical explorations of the complexities and challenges in current identity scholarship and research to methodological approaches across the disciplines, we will engage a deep, questioning inquiry.

LLC 750, Section 03 Education Policy and the African American Community

Explores the impact of k-12 educational policies on the African American community. This examination will be framed within the current state of educational achievement and attainment in the African American community to answer the question: Why hasn’t more progress toward educational opportunity for African Americans been achieved? The course will conclude with a consideration of future policies to realize educational equity for African American children and youth.
